

CONVENTION ON INTERNATIONAL TRADE IN ENDANGERED SPECIES
OF WILD FAUNA AND FLORA

Seventeenth meeting of the Conference of the Parties
Johannesburg (South Africa), 24 September – 5 October 2016

IMPLICATIONS OF THE EU'S ACCESSION TO CITES

1. This document has been submitted by the European Union and its Member States, in relation to agenda item 4 on Adoption of Rules of Procedure.*
2. COP17 will be the first meeting of the Conference of the Parties after the entry into force, in November 2013, of the Gaborone Amendment to the Convention and the subsequent accession of the European Union (EU) as the first regional economic integration organisation (REIO) in 2015. The following Q&A is designed to address questions frequently received on the practical implications of the accession.

What will change compared to the practice at previous CoPs?

The only change in practice concerns the exercise of voting rights and the fact that for a number of items on the agenda, it will be the EU pressing the voting button with a number of votes equal to the number of their Member States which are Parties to the Convention (see Article XXI (5) of the Convention), i.e. 28. On other items, as before, the individual EU Member States will press the buttons. Under no circumstances, will both the EU and the individual 28 Member States vote, so there will be no additional rights due to the EU becoming a Party to CITES.

Who will vote on what?

In line with Article XXI (5), the EU will vote in the fields of its competence. Those have been set out in the Declaration of Competences submitted when the EU deposited its instrument of accession. Before each CoP, the EU and the EU Member States will agree internally on the distribution of voting for the various agenda items between the EU or the individual Member States. Irrespective of whether the EU or the individual Member States vote, the vote will be based on a coordinated position, as has been the practice at previous CoPs, with the exception of budgetary matters where the EU and the different Member States, contributing separately to the budget, may express separate views.

How will other delegations be informed about who will exercise the voting rights on which item?

The EU and its Member States will inform all Parties before each vote who will exercise the right to vote on a specific item. In addition, and to facilitate the smooth running of the first meeting where the EU participates as a Party in its own right, the EU and its Member States intend to submit an information document prior to CoP 17 which will set out for each agenda item who will exercise the right to vote.

Who will speak on what?

As in previous CoPs, the EU and its Member States will deliver statements, based on positions agreed between them, from behind the EU nameplate.

Position of the EU and its Member States on current proposals regarding the revision of the Rules of Procedure (RoP)

1. Number of votes

The Rules of Procedure of the CITES CoP need to be modified to reflect Art XXI of the Convention in relation to the participation of regional economic integration organizations like the EU, notably on voting.

On voting, the rules in the CITES Convention are clear. Article XXI(5) states that "In the fields of their competence, regional economic integration organizations shall exercise their right to vote with a number of votes equal to the number of their Member States which are Parties to the Convention. Such organizations shall not exercise their right to vote if their Member States exercise theirs, and vice versa".

In line with this, the CITES Secretariat has proposed to amend the relevant Rule 26 of the CoP Rules of Procedure to read

Rule 26 Right to vote

- 1. Each Party shall have one vote, except as provided for in paragraph 3 of this Rule.*
- 2. The duly accredited Representative of a Party shall exercise the voting rights of that Party.*
- 3. In the fields of their competence, regional economic integration organizations shall exercise their right to vote with a number of votes equal to the number of their Member States which are Parties to the Convention. Such organizations shall not exercise their right to vote if their Member States exercise theirs, and vice versa.*
- 4. In advance of each vote, each regional economic integration organization that is a Party to the Convention shall be invited to announce whether it will exercise its right to vote in accordance with paragraph 3 of this Rule or whether its Member States will exercise their right to vote.*

The EU and its Member States support this proposed amendment to the Rules of Procedure. The proposed wording not only reflects the text of the CITES Convention (Article XXI), but it also follows what is in place in a large number of international conventions (WTO, UN Framework Convention on Climate Change, Montreal Protocol on ozone-depleting substances, Convention on Biological Diversity, Convention on Migratory Species, Basel, Rotterdam and Stockholm Conventions on chemicals and waste – see annex).

The EU and its Member States do not support suggestions by some Parties to foresee in the RoP that Regional Economic Integration Organisations should only be able to vote with the number of votes of its Member States present and eligible to vote at the meeting. This would not be consistent with the CITES Convention, and it would be legally inadmissible for the Rules of Procedure to establish additional conditions contrary to the text of the Convention itself which is the primary legal source. In addition, when the EU votes, it commits the whole EU to implement the measures concerned and is accountable for their implementation across all EU Member States; it is therefore logical that the EU then votes with the votes of all its Member States, no matter how many Member States are present or not at the meeting.

2. Quorum

The EU and its Member States agree that a REIO and its Member States shall not be counted cumulatively when the quorum for a session is established.

3. Information on repartition of voting rights between the EU and its Member States

The EU and its Member States agree that information of the repartition of voting rights between the EU and its Member States on the various agenda items of the CoP should be shared with third countries and the CITES Secretariat in a timely manner.

Examples of provisions on voting by Regional Economic Integration Organisations in international Conventions

A large number of international Conventions contain provisions which foresee that, on matters within their competence, Regional economic integration organisations vote with a number of votes equal to the number of their Member States which are Parties to the Convention. The Parties to these Conventions have adopted Rules of Procedure for the meeting of their Conference of Parties which reflect the relevant provisions of the Convention in that respect. The list below contains examples of the text of such Conventions and Rules of Procedure.

Where the European Communities exercise their right to vote, they shall have a number of votes equal to the number of their member States² which are Members of the WTO. Decisions of the Ministerial Conference and the General Council shall be taken by a majority of the votes cast, unless otherwise provided in this Agreement or in the relevant Multilateral Trade Agreement.
